

Hands On!

You might not be able to touch our casts, but they are getting up to lots of interesting things with their hands.

See if you can answer these questions, as we zoom in on parts of our casts that might sometimes get overlooked. You can then have a look at the whole picture!

This child's hand is still stuck onto the back of the Crouching Aphrodite.

Who's hand might this have been?

The Museum of Classical Archaeology

This goddess's hands are busy. She's getting an arrow from the bunch on her back, and keeping her antlered companion in check.

But who is she? And what is she the goddess of?

Can you tell what fruit is being held by this beautiful goddess? And why might she be holding it?

(Clue - it's not a snack!)

This hero is holding the same kind of fruit ... why do you think he is holding this behind his back?

Oh dear - don't try this at home!

This goose is in a spot of bother, but what kind of person is giving it such a hard time?

These might look like some birds being held rather tightly, but they are actually part of objects. What are the objects we can see being held onto for dear life by these purple men?

Sticking with animals, here is a man wrestling with an enormous snake.

How did he get here?

Happier times now - can you tell what's being held up here?

(Clue - what kind of noise do you think they make?)

Here's a mystery for you: what's in the box?

It looks like the woman on the right has taken something out and is having a good look at it, but what could it be?

You might be able to tell what this goddess is holding, but why do you think she's got some wheat in her hand?

